

Textbook Charging Available to eligible Financial Aid Students (2020-2021)

Financial aid refunds will be disbursed sometime during the 5th week of classes. We allow students who meet certain criteria, to charge their books and supplies at Western's Campus Shop.

Who will be allowed to charge?

Any student who:

- 1) Has been sent an "award email" from Western's Financial Aid Office who has been awarded financial aid, and
- 2) Will have money left over after the student's account balance is deducted from the financial aid, and
- 3) Has granted Western permission to take the required book/supply charges out of their financial aid

What can a student charge?

Students, who meet the requirements, can charge books and supplies up to the amount of financial aid LESS any student account balance. If required books and supplies cost MORE than the financial aid monies left over after the student account balance is deducted from financial aid, the student will be required to pay the difference when the books/supplies are given to the student. (Federal Direct Loan awards will NOT be included in the amount allowed to charge against if Entrance Counseling and the Master Promissory Note have NOT been completed)
